The Raymon Grace Foundation

Raymon Grace Foundation Receives Tax-Exempt Status April 2008.

The Raymon Grace Foundation has received notification that its application for 501 (c) 3 status as a charitable organization has been granted.

The Foundation primarily focuses on projects that concern clean water and clearing energy for people and places that promote health and spiritual well being. The Foundation will also consider other projects that are beneficial to our environment and humanity.

Foundation founder Raymon Grace, a native of Southwest Virginia, has studied various forms of healing for more than 30 years with teachers such as Rolling Thunder, a Cherokee medicine man and Chief Two Trees, Cherokee chief and healer.

Raymon explains the Foundation's focus by saying," Each day there are more and more people using and polluting water, resulting in less drinkable water . This is a trend that cannot continue if our descendants are to survive. We must stop this trend."
